BOUND FOR THE POLE.

COL. GILDER'S PROPOSED TRIP.

Me Expects to Reach the North Pole by Land-Details of the Journey-Only One White Companion.

NEW YORK, July 12 .- Colonel Gilder, New YORK, July 12.—Colonel Glider, a Herald representative, will start this evening on an exploring expedition of the unknown regions to the north of the American continent. He first goes to New London, Conn., and there will take passage on the northern whaler "Era," Captain Spicer, which will land him at a point on Cumberland land to whence he homes has a bod dash. land inlet, whence he hopes, by a bold dash, to reach the most northern latitude that has yet been touched, and, if possible, plant the American standard on the point geographically known as the north pole. Cold Gilder possesses an unique experience to aid him in the enterprise. His journey with Lieutenant Schwatka in search of the relics of the Sir John Franklin expedition is a ter of history. He was also on board the igers when she was destroyed by fire or the north coast of Siberia. After that disaster he made his celebrated journey of 2,000 capital of Siberia. During this great tramp he formed the notion of reaching the north pole on toot, and it has been with him ever since.

Last night a reporter found him making his last preparations for the voyage. "Yes I am pretty nearly fixed for the voyage," he said, "and here is Mr. William Griffiths, the only white man who is to accompany me. We don't take much along with us. We shall have a Sharp's rifle, a few Winchesters, two breech-loading shot guns and several muzzle loading guns, and provisions for one year. The schooner Era, after leaving New London, will touch at three places, the last one of which will be Kikerton, on the north side of Cumberland inlet. There I expect to remain about a year to get a party of natives side of Cumberland inlet. There I expect to remain about a year to get a party of natives to accompany me, as at the time I arrive, they will all be out hunting. But if I am able to make up my party in time, the vessel will take me across Baffin's bay to some point on the southern part of Greenland, where I shall be picked up by some Scotch whaler next year from St. Johns, N. F., and carried to Melville Bay or to the Cary Islands, near Smith's sound. Or they may land me on the western coast as high up as they can get, which is about '8° 50.' If I am landed there I can work my way to Fort Conger, in which is about 78° 50.' If I am landed there I can work my way to Fort Conger, in Lady Franklin Bay, and from there make my dash to the pole on the route laid down by Lieutenant Lockwood, of the Greely ex-pedition, who reached latitude 82° 9,' or about 938 miles from the pole. Lockwood could have easily gone 100 miles further, so Greely states, if he had had better sleds and good drivers. But he was directed to return as soon as his supplies were exhausted and to run no risks. I shall be hampered by no instructions, and I have experience of this kind of work, too, and I have full confidence of being able to reach a much higher latitude if I am able to reach a full confidence. of being able to reach a much higher latitude if I am able to reach Fort Conger. Probably the difficulty will be to reach that point. But if I could get anywhere near Cape Sabine by vessel, I could cross overland to Cape Lockwood up Greely Fiord, and then I would be able to and to the maps the land to the immediate northward which is beli-yed to exist, but has never been seen. We propose to live principally on fish and game we meet with on the journey. But in case of necessity, there are many points below the mouth of Smith's sound where provisions have been left by previous expedilow the mouth of Smith's sound where provisions have been left by previous expeditions. I shall take two sleds—one large one and one small one—for myself and Mr. Griffiths. When we can get no farther with the larger one we shall go on with the smaller. When we are compelled to do so we shall abandon that—even to the extent of being without food for several days it necessary."

"And what do you expect to find?"
"I shall try to reach the pole. I expect to find an open sea, to some extent—not a navigable sea, however."

He was a soldier in the war of 1812, fighting the British and the Indians with distinguished bravery and was wounded and taken prisoner by the latter at the battle of River Risser, near Detroit. He was afterward exchanged, and the battle of New Orleans found him quartermaster general of the Kentucky forces engaged. For the past several years Rev. BLOOMINGTON, Ind., July 12.—The community was shocked this morning at the an-nouncement of the death of Joseph M. Howe, pioneer merchant and leading citizen. For some time he had been in feeble health, but he was well as usual until 11 o'clock last night, when he was taken suddenly sick, and died in a few hours. His wife died only a few months ago.

In the Dahline-Plummer paternity suit before 'Squire Feibleman, the defendant Saturday evening attempted to secure his release by claiming that he was a resident of Madison county, and also alleging that the court had no jurisdiction because the act was committed in Chicago. He was held under ond, however, and no response coming to the telegram forwarded to Chicago, Consta-ble Goudy started for that city Saturday night and he returned this morning with the complainant, who will appear in court this afternoon. Her coming was not anticipated by the defense, and it complicates the situation considerably.

The Knights of Pythias Start for Toront for the Supreme Conclave Drill.

Indianapolis Division, No. 2, Uniform Rank Knights of Pythias, started at noon to-day for Toronto. For weeks the division has been preparing for the competitive supreme conclave drill which takes place in that city on Wednesday of this week, and both commander and men left in the full ex-pectation of doing as well if not better than pectation of doing as well if not better than any other division will do. The division will enter prize drill for class A, to which only those commands which have competed for the supreme lodge badge are eligible. The first prize will be $1,000; second, $500. A score of divisions from all parts of America have entered the drill, but it is thought competition will eventually narrow down to the following commands: Kokomo; Fort Dusten, of Chicago; Columbus division, Kansas; Red Cross division, Cleveland; Division No. 6, Springfield, O.; Indianapolis division, No. 2.

On Saturday The News was requested to would address one of the Sunday temperand neetings, and yesterday the Journal had a clipping from the Greensburg Review, which pretended to speak on the authority of the New York Christian Advocate, to the effect hat Meredith was a fraud and an impostor. The Review also intimated that Meredith had attempted to "catch on" at Greensburg but he had not met with flattering success. but he had not met with nattering success. Yesterday afternoon in the face of this damaging charge Mr. Meredith appeared at the Military park meeting, but he had spoken but briefly until Mr. A. S. It is not known who made the appointment for him, nor if he is taking any steps whatever to contradict the accusation made by the Review

Norris J. McConney to-day resigned the agency of the Midland Fast Freight line and accepted the Indianapolis agency of the I., B. & W. Mr. Gregory, who has heretofore served the latter company acceptably, has resigned to go into business for himself. Mr. McConney is not a new man with the I., B. & W. He is an experienced train man, ticket or freight agent, and is, no doubt, the man the I., B. & W. wants in its Indianapolis office.

There is a stir among freight agents over the grain movement. New wheat begins to move freely, and all agents are on the alert for business. The lines carrying to the lakes seem, however, to be doing the business, and they ought to have it, if they can take care of it at the low rates they are making. One Indianapolis firm to-day soid 150,000 bushels of wheat, consigned to Toledo, and it all goes at five cents per hundred pounds. The C., H. & I., I., B. & W. and Wabash, delivering at Toledo, Sandusky, Detroit and other lake ports, at this rate, are actively in the mrkets transporters. A five-cent rate to Detroit, 270 miles, ought to be low enough to put millions of bushels in motion. The all rail routes, thus far, are not yielding to the temptation to cut rates in the hope of breating the flow to the lakes:

TELEPHONE REORGANIZATION.

Prospects of the Wallace Instrument and the Claims Made for It-Valuation of Taxable Property in Indiana,

A meeting of the directory of the Wallace Co-operative Telephone company is being held late this afternoon, and it is the understanding that it will result in a understanding that it will result in a reorganization in the retirement of J. M. Ridenour, William Bosson, William Wallace J. H. Stewart, and Mr. Vance of Louisville, and the substitution of Louis Hollweg, Henry Schnull, J. W. Schmidt, H. C. G. Bals, W. H. Stiles and J. R. Ross. The reason of the change is said to be owing to a disagreement over the most feasible method of procedure, and possibly a lack of zeal on part of some of the gentlemen to venture their money in the investment to ture their money in the investment to the amount deemed most desirable. There is a promise that if the council makes the necessary changes in the ordinance to-night the work of establishing the plant will begin at once, but there has been so much talk of this kind that the company can hardly find fault if the public is somewhat skeptical concerning the possibility of securing telephone service through the medium of the Wallace. In this connection, the result of an interview to-day with Superintendent Hockett, of the Central Union, is not without interesting significance at this time. Concerning a statement that the Wallace company was putting in exchanges elsewhere, Mr. Hockett said:

said:
"I know that Mr. Wallace is not putting n exchanges anywhere. There is a suit for intringement against him in New York in which he is ruled to answer by August 1, that will effectually shut him up there, and closing up any company that may attempt to use his instruments here will be closing up any company that may attempt to use his instruments here will be a mere matter of form. One of the Wallace representatives said to the council committee here that if the fifth claim of Bell's patent holds good, we infringe, and are shut out; and since then the New Orleans decision, fully sustaining the fifth claim, has been rendered and extensively published in Indiana. It doesn't matter what kind of an ordinance the ter what kind of an ordinance the Wallace people may receive from the city council, they will never be able to furnish council, they will never be able to lurnish the people telephone service. There were some people here who went into a telephone scheme some two years ago—the Overland I believe—and persons thinking of investing in telephone stocks now might get some valuable information from them. If I remember rightly their experience was not entirely satisfactory."

Valuation of Property in the State. The state board of equalization has received the reports of the appraisement of property in the state from all the counties except Marion and Floyd. The net decrease in valuation since that fixed six years ago in the 90 counties is $45,598,622, and calculating a like reduction in the two counties not reported, it makes the total decrease $49,375,482. The decrease in farm lands is $20.858,456; in town lots and improvements. $20.808,406; in town lots and improvements, $3,485,902, and in personal property $21,254,-204. The average value of farm lands six years ago was $14.35 per acre, and of improvements thereon $3.25; now it is given at $13.50 per acre and $2.84 improvements. Last year the total value of lots and improvements in the ninety counties was $1,619,971.02; of lands and improvements. and improvements, $390,105,931, and of personal property, $2,270,040.98. The total val-uation of all the property in the state last year, on which taxes were assessed, was $7,935,260.78. If the per cent of reduction made in the ninety other counties is applied to Marion county, the reduction here will be $46,519.27, and the aggregate valuation is the county reduced to $63,799,608, about one-tenth of the total valuation of the state.

Brown, a young man, aged wenty-two, unmarried, and employed the Richardson farm, six miles south of the city, near Poplar Grove, committed suicide some time during the night by shooting himself through the forehead with a revolver, and his remains were found in the barn on the farm this morning. The deceased was the son of a widow, living at Hope, Bartholomew county, and the cause of the self-destruction is attributed to despondency, growing out of ill-health and the opposition of her family to his marriage with Miss Lizzie Oldham. He was with this young lady yesterday afternoon, and he told her that she would never see him again told her that she would never see him again alive, but little heed was given to the threat. Last evening he called upon Miss Lizzie Cummings, a young lady in his neighborhood, where he remained until nearly 11 o'clock. Upon returning home he is supposed to have gone immediately to the barn and ended his life. CONGRESSMAN MORRISON made a good report on Congressman Randall's revenuereduction sliss tariff-reform bill. As printed in The News Saturday it was a scathing exposure of the measure, Nothing more need be said of it, and it is to be hoped nothing more will be needed. The bill has been received at best only with indifference by the press of the country, and generally with contempt.

THE inconsistencies in the assessments of city lots and buildings and all county real estate are so many and gross that it is impossible for any scheme of equalization to reduce them to consistency and justice. A new appraisement is obviously indispens.ble, if for nothing else to at least remove such indications of incompetent assessments as appear in bordering farms of adjacent townships of equal market value rated at differences of 25 to 50 per cent., and city lots rated at $200 and $300 a foot.

"VERY few of the thousands of persons who visited Niagara Falls to-day," says a Buffaio (N. Y.) telegram of vesterday, "had any idea that another adventurous man would attempt to swim the whirlpool rapids. in which Captain Webb lost his life." Well no such attempt was made. This man Graham, a Philadelphia cooper, simply shut himself up in a stout and carefully ballasted eask and floated through in safety. Captain Webb swam in puris naturalibus. There is no more resemblance between the two than between sailing in a balloon and flying.

THE council contract committee should move slowly in the matter of the Washington street im provement. It was represented to the property holders that changing the level of the roadway and putting down a stone pavement would cost $6.60 a front foot. But when the bids were opened the lowest was $12.40 a foot, almost double. This makes no allowance for the space occupied by the street-railway tracks, and which resident has declared the company will | this one is good so far as it good not pay for under any circumstances. This is unjust to the property owners in itself, and the sum asked is so large that the work should not be undertaken, except in the face of a necessity, which does not exist.

Congress has done some foolish things, as congresses always have, and will till they meet in the New Jerusalem. But once in while a very just and wise thing is done, or a very foolish and discreditable thing undone, that deserves especial commendation in the hope of encouraging repetitions. We had an illustration on Saturday in the defeat of a provision-previously adopted by a large majority-to give all the employes of the senate and house a month's pay, the aggregate amounting to $200,000. There was conceivable honorable reason for such a donation. The employes of congress are all over-paid, many of double and triple what better men get for better work; even the pages are better paid than many veteran skilled workmen with families to support and educate. There is no claim on the justice or even the liberality of either house to any extra pay. But it has been the fashion to give it, to quiet the importunities of the shameless beggars for it. It was made on Friday by the same ns and urgencies that have so often got it, but Reagan, of Texas, "may his tribe inerease"-at least those of that quality-would't "stand the rise" red to recommit the appropriation bill with instructions to strike out that provision. He was supported by Mr. Price of Wisconsin, Mr. Hemphall of South Carolina, and Mr. McAdoo of New Jersey, and opposed -let them be remembered-by Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, and Mr. Hiscook, of New York. But the house ended the disgraceful job of the day before by a majority of 150 to 67, more than two to one. It was good reparaion of a bad job. For it was a "job" all

WRITING of the Catholic priest, Galeote, sinated the bishop of Madrid on Palm Sunday, last, a letter to the New York World says the assassin was what slang phrase would call such a layman, "a bad gg." He was originally a curate, but after epeated warnings from his rector, in conse-quence of his living in open adultery with a sotorious woman of Madrid, was prohibited from officiating at the altar. The culmination of his sinful career was this murder of the good bishop. The letter alluded to, saying that such crimes as this are very rare indeed, adds that it has called public attention to the existence of a very dangerous class, which in France, Spain, Portugal, Italy and to some extent England, is an important element of the population. It is that class of the clergy, both Catholic and Protestant, who for one reason or another is unfrocked, and in addition, all those who though not broken of their functions have not the cure of souls. Amid the strongly marked lines of separation of classes which a man of low degree can better his social condition is by entering the priestgood. Naturally there are a vast number of candidates for whom there are no parishes. Debarred by their calling from a remunerative trade or profession, they are dependent on charity, or else on the desperate chance of obtaining a livelihood by preying on instead of praying for their fellow-men. In Italy, alone, there are about 10,000 of these unfortunate men, exposed to a handto-mouth existence and to the temptations of evil. The only money they can earn is by occasionally officiating in the stead of some regular cergyman, who, for various reasons may allow it, at the funerals of poor people. Hence they hunt out death like vultures. Times of cholera or other plagues are times of golden harvest to them. What a horrible condition of things! The newspapers are fuil of various crimes committed by these outcasts or society. These in Great Britain, a clergyman of the Church of England who had been suspended by his bishop for gross drunkenness, writes to the venerable prelate. threatening to "go and pistol him in the cathedral, chalice in hand," and the records of the London police court show that almost daily clergymen "without the cure of souls" are brought before the magistrates for all kinds of offenses. So illustrations innumerable might be multiplied. It is a singular and terrible state of affairs-one happily to which this country is a stranger, and to which, who does not hope, it may ever be. THE report of the civil service commission is "as good as could be expected." It declares that the power of removal is left practically unmolested by the present law. So it is, and so we take it it must be ever: otherwise the creature must be greater than the creator. But, says the commission, it is contrary to the spirit of the law to remove any one except for cause. Now, further than that we do not see how any sound law can go. It is just the difference between "removed" and "removable." A clerk must be removable at any time; otherwise it were difficult to see how a well-ordered service could be secured; but he is not to be removed except for good cause. If, now, an an appointing officer, like our postmaster, chooses to abuse this law and removes employes, as he has done, solely for party reasons, we fail to see what remedy can be applied except the remedy of his removal by the chief appointing power. It all runs back to that. If President Cleveland would live up to his declaration that this law "shall be enforced in good faith," then he would remove the Joneses and others who have not been so enforcing it. The law is all right; it is a question of whether it is to be ridden to death by enemies or nurtured life by friends. It is thus with every law. The illustration runs back to the old saying about being able to drive a coach and four through any act of parliament that was ever framed. There might possibly be this much more explicitness as to removals: that as all removals now made must be certified as to cause, and this implying that only good cause is to be a justification, the law might be amended to declare that whenever other than good cause is certified, the removal should be null and void. As to appointments under this law, the civil service commission holds that they must be made without reference to politics and fairly as certified. This is as tightly clinched as words can make it, and vet it is easy to see how our postmaster, for instance, might discharge every republican in the office because he is a republican, and might fill the places honestly from among those who passed examinations, might learn who among these are republicans and discharge them the next minute. and so forth and so on. Thus any law can be made of no effect if left to the administration of its enemies, and our local postmaster for example, long ago, announced himself as its enemy. So we repeat, with this law or any that could be framed (and depends on who executes it. We will have civil service reform when the powers that be are honestly in favor of it, and we won't have it until then in spite of all the laws that could be passed on the subject.

Reform the Civil Service. The Sentinel defending the existing demoralization in the postal service, local and general, says:

The News offers, as reform, a condition in which a certain service, composed entirely of republicans and republican wire-pullers, shall be retained by a democratic administration, whom it not only unitedly opposed in the political field, but unitedly obstructs after the government has passed into democratic control.

The News does not offer that as a reform That is simply a fact (conceding the harshness and extremity of the Sentinel's characterization, for the sake of argument). To this fact The News brings the law, which is designed to make an ending of this condition by transferring every man's zeal from party service to public service. This law says every employe in our Indianapolis postoffice, for example, "so long as you honestly perform your duty you shall retain your place." Has this law been honestly and fairly followed in our postoffice? Let us have a direct answer to this question. As to the general railway iervice, there is no law governing it, but the spirit and purpose of civil service reform ask regard for themselves there as elsewhere. Granted every condition of political prostitution of the public service by the republicans which the Sentinel would claim, the civil service law and the purpose of that reform is to end it. How? By stopping here and now and making security of tenure depend upon zeal in the business of the office, and not zeal in the interests of party. But the democratic party purpose and the Sentinel's contention is, that this beginning shall not be made until all the republican employes are turned out and in their place only democrats put. If that is allowed, when the republican party returns to power (and that time may not be far off) it could say, "We will turn out all these democrats, and then, after having all places filled with republicans, we will begin the reform." At that rate we should never have it. The public service was filled by the spoils system, to which the republican party fell heir a quarter of a century ago; but there is one palliation. It fell heir to it when, for years afterward, it was not safe to have democrats in the service. That's flat! So administering the service on the spoils basis the time finally came when the people said, "We want it ended. We want the public business administered on business principles;" and the civil service law was passed as a beginning. This in the brief time that the republicans had the exe-cution of it was honestly executed. In the year and more that the democrats have had it, it has been systematically and service it was in a high state of efficiency. This has given place to an inefficiency that is driving the business of the country to the express offices, because, competent and nonest clerks with the expertness that comes from years of experience have been displaced, for no reason but to give place to democratic party and personal favorites, too often of the Dowling and Conroy stripe. That is the reason as plain as that two and two make four. But our contemporary waves this dying man's straw: that the demoralization is because of the 75 per cent, of former experienced employes who remain, in that they commit blunders willfully in rder to discredit the service. We explained the other day that a daily record of every man's work was certified, so that every mistake can be located as exactly as in an express company's office.

Now finally says the Sentinel: The result only proves that if politicians mus-un the postoffice, they must be politicians who we imagine The News to rejoin: "We don't we colliticians at all." But we have politicians, infortunately for the service, they are mostly republican politicians, men who were given office ublican politicians, men in reward for party service.

This runs around in the circle we described above, that there must be no reform until all the republicans are out, and, therefore, when For the great heart of the nation, throbbing answered, "Lord, we come!"—[Bret Harte. the republican party comes in power there must be none until all the democrats are out. The civil service law was intended to, and would, if lived up to, put an end the "political" business. Do you imagine that a republican in politics, employed in the postoffice, if told, "do your duty and you shall keep your place," would go to committing rauds and making blunders, purposely, in order to discredit a democratic administration? You have a feeble notion of the first law of life-self defense-if you think so.

A San Francisco Tailor's Trick.

[Correspondence Sacramento Bee.]
There is a story floating around the clubs at the expense of young Mr. James —, but I will not give his name though his individ-I will not give his name though his individuality may easily be surmised from the nature of the incident. This youth, whose father is among the millionaires, lounged into a tailor shop some weeks ago and ordered a suit of clothes. The suit was sent to the young man's hotel, but of course the tailor got no money for it. A few days ago as Master James was passing by the tailor shop, the bland proprietor hailed him with a smile:

Then something was wrong with the vest, and that too was taken down stairs for treatment. The tailor next declared that the trousers might be improved upon. They were given up and the youth accommodated with a seat in the

"Now," said the wily tailor, "you will have to send a messenger boy to your room for your other clothes, for 1 am afraid we can not let you have this suit again unless you liquidate the bill in tull."

Young Master James begged hard for his clothes, but the tailor was inexorable, and much to his disgust he resumed his winter garments, and departed with a crestfallen

The state board seems to $13.50 per acre. The state board seems to have great trouble in equalizing among the several counties, and especially it is a matter to do justice to the different railroads. It is only justice to Marion county to say that for years their citizens have been appraised enormously high, and it is only just that i should be reduced. Doesn't Want the Convention Held Here

We should like to see the democratic state convention held at some other point than Indianapolis, caring little where, so if is not held there. Marion county is a heavy load o carry at best, and we don't want any of it in the present campaign. If the convention should be held there and they don't get every thing there is out—and get it served on a gold charger—the half dozen malcontents there will bolt—get up another convention and thus raise another racket. We suggest the lelegates from this county unite in asking hange of location.

ENGLISH ELECTIONS.

SPIRIT OF THE MANIFESTOES.

The Uncertainty of Prophecy Again Shown-The Vagaries of the Late King Ludwig, of Bavaria.

[Correspondence of The Indianapolis News.] LONDON, June 26 .- The Irish nationalists are fighting the battle no more in Ireland, where their cause is gained, but in England especially in London. It is a strange sight to see English crowds welcome and theer Parnell, Sexton, Michael Davitt. At a large meeting held in St. James hall last Wednesday it was the Irish ex-political convict-a great patriot-who had the pleasure of proposing a vote of thanks to her majesty's government. Tempora mutantur! Dear John Bull! There is no such man as ne to make a virtue of necessity.

Lord Randolph Churchill has deemed it consistent with good taste to send an address to his constituents, in which he refers to Mr. Gladstone's attitude as one of "senile vanity," and his effort to pacify Ireland as one to gratify the ambition of an old man in a hurry." The young tory democrat can eclipse any fish-wife of Billingsgate in lanhurry.' guage and abuse. A costermonger rising rom the hights of his wheelbarrow and yelling abuse at a successful rival would retire from competition with this descendant of the great Marlborough. But the noble lord will not attempt to defend himself. He once diplomatist say that "it was not Gladstone's insult to Austria (in 1879) that damaged him so much in Europe, but his apology (in 1880), when he came back to Lord Randolph has taken the noral to heart, and he goes on his way without explanations or apologies. This address of the young tory leader will greatly help the liberals

We were much amused, at the beginning of the week, by the issue of a tenian manifesto, declaring that the true Irish patriots would never be satisfied until the last link that tied Ireland to England had been broken, and that dynamite would soon be again resorted to in order to attain this end. But he author of the supposed manifesto is too clever by half, and it is easy to see that it is nothing but a base electioneering dodge. Yet the conservative papers have made capital of it and used it as a warning to the electors who are ready to record their votes to Mr. Gladstone and his followers. Mr. Michael Davitt thinks that the author of this document is an ex-editor of a weekly Irish paper, now extinct, which pretended at one time to represent the views of the extreme Irish nationalists. This gentleman, it would appear, failing after repeated applications to obtain money or employment from Mr. Parnell, has been for me time the special dynamite revolutionist contributor to a London conservative evening paper, and is now on the pamphleteering staff of the Loval and Patriotic Union. All this is very discreditable to the conservatives, and their "fenian manifesto," an unscrupulous maneuver. They must feel that their cause is a very poor one, as is shown by the following frank remark, made by a prominent conservative statesman to a forign correspondent in the lobby of the house "What with Salisbury's twenof commons: "What with Salisbury's twen-ty years of coercion; Carnarvon hand in glove with Parnell, and Randolph's cursed lection address, the tory party is pretty thoroughly up a tree just no

The Comte de Paris has left France for England, Prince Napoleon for Switzerland, and his son Victor for Belgium. For the first and his son Victor for Belgium. For the first time in his life Prince Victor must feel that he is an important personage, a danger to the republic. Poor boy! I do not suppose he ever freamed of such an hour! Since the death of the Comte de Chambord the Comte de Paris has no doubt been a serious rival to the republic. But if the republicans have committed an act of tyranny against him they have committed one of stupid weakness against the Napoleons, who have not, and never had, the remotest chance of ever coming again to the French throne. Napoleon was possible in 1851, because, and simply because, he bore the the glorious name of the victor of Austerlitz; the glorious name of the victor of Austeritz; but now a Napoleon only bears the name of the vanquished of Sedan; he is an impossi-bility. And when the expulsion extends to the insignificant son of Napoleon, it becomes ludicrous, and can only for a few days give a little luster to a perfecty nonentity. However this may be, it is evident that, by constantly meeting the wishes of the ad-vanced republican party, the French prime minister has shown to the world that it is not a case of monarchy versus republic in France now, but a case of republic versus revolution. This is enough to make one France now, but a case of republic versus revolution. This is enough to make one grow reflective.

The good Bavarians, to the number of about 25,000, turned out to see the remains of their beloved king carried to the grave. They were wonderfully attached to this man, whose reign began so auspiciously. In spite whose reigh began so auspiriously. In spite of the proofs brought forward, they, most of them, still refuse to believe in his insanity, and their grief broke forth in sobs as the funeral procession passed. In the minds of unbiased persons, however, there is no room for doubt that poor King Louis had been mad for several years before his death, man for several years before his death, though it was only lately that his madness began to be dangerous to those about him. His servants must have had a lively time, on the whole. They might have complained occasionally of harsh treatment, as, for instance, when one of them was compelled to wear a black mask for twelve months as punishment for some trifling mistake made in waiting at table; but they would scarcely complain of the monotony of their existence, for they were evidently treated with unlooked-for severity one day and exalted to great honors the next, in delightfully unforseen style. The poor Bedlamite king used to make one of his son's servants go about with a black mask on his forehead, to indicate that his brain was affected. There would be something ludicrous in all this if it were not so sad. As for his ministers, they were condemned to death for the least trifle, and their royal indicates the same trifle. judge was happy in the belief that his sen-tences were carried out. Once he sent for a scientific man from Munich to transform one of the Hohenschwangan mountains into a volcano. From papers discovered these last findings, this is what we were to have had, if the king had lived: One of his lack had, if the king had lived: One of his lackeys was to have been prime minister. In king had cost 130,000,000 francs, and how to raise more to go on building castles on the tops of inaccessible mountains was a great question with him, so the savants

It is curious what a want exists in the breast of man for a chapel of some kind. Let the man be ever so much of an unbeliever, he still feels this want. His very unbelief takes the place of a creed to him, and he wants a place to recite it in. He must draw there unto him and presented them here. others unto him and persuade them; he likes to feel that he is not alone in his ideas likes to feel that he is not alone in his ideas, and a meeting house with some kind of ceremony is a necessity to him. In the time of the great French revolution, the goddess Reason had her worshipers and her temple, and the same want is still felt by some of the countrymen of these wayward spirits who did her honor. At least this is what might have occurred to any one looking in at the Salle Rivoli in Paris last Wednesday evening: an altar, on which stood two busts, one of Garibaldi, the other of Victor Hugo, each hung round with the flags of their country. For priests and deacons, there were two members of parliament; for choir, the young ladies of the Industrial school at Montreuil; for hymns were substituted evolutions. for hymns were substituted revolutionary or patriotic songs. Instead of the reading of holy scriptures, some one gave a reading from "Les Panores Gems" of Victor Hugo and the catechism of the "Rights of Man." The ceremony was opened by a panegyric of the great poet, and of Gari-baldi who was compared to Julius Caesar (a poor compliment coming from a descendant of the Gauls) and finished with the Marseil-laise. Just before the close of the proceedings a little maiden of tender years stood up, and in her infantile voice thanked her mistress, in her infantile voice thanked her mistress, in the name of her schoolfellows, for having brought them to that noble ceremony, for what was there more noble than to venerate great genius. "We have been born under the glorious sun of the republic," said the little orator, "but we lack one thing, and the little orator, "but we lack one thing, and that is the separation of the church and state. We look to you, Messicurs le deputies, to give us this blessing very soon." Frantic applause, followed by the great national anthem, concluded the proceedings, and the worshipers dispersed. Such ceremonies always make me think of Voltaire's celebrated saying: "If God did not exist, men would have to invent Him."

have to invent Him."

The annals of drink again! A Warwick shire lady misunderstood the use of the water-butt last Monday. This person retired to bed on Sunday evening and was followed by her husband, who slept the sleep of the righteous until an early hour in the morning. When he woke up he found that the pol when he woke up he found that the pois star of his existence was missing. A search was instituted in the cellars, the at-tics, everywhere, but without avail. Finally an adjournment was made to the garden, and while some of the party examined the cucumber frames others di-rected their attention to the recentacle for rected their attention to the receptacle fo rainwater. There the unfortunate lady was rainwater. There the unit of the song "All In the found, like the hero of the song "All In the Downs." She was no more. John Bull undoubtedly scored one in Paris the other day. It appears that an attempt was made to extort money from an Englishman by an ex-commissary of police. John, instead of resorting to the slow, pro-saic judicial process of bringing up the man before a court of justice, applied his fist to that individual's noddle and was himsubsequently brought up a magistrate. Now, as a rule, punching a man's head is attended with unpleasant con-sequences for the puncher, but in this case John was acquitted, while the Frenchman administered three months' imprison was was administered three months' imprison-ment. This act of justice may tend to improve the intente cordiale some time imperiled by the rumor of the French flag having been hoisted in the New Hebrides, which rumor, after all, has turned out to be nothing but a

WASHINGTON STREET PAVING. Enormous Increase in the Cost of the Proposed Improvement.

The civil engineer states that in his original estimate for the improvement of Washington street the cost of the concrete bottom and the composition topping were not included, these having afterward been added to the ordinance by amendment. Without these the estimated cost per lineal foot was $6.67, and the addition makes a difference of $4.67. Still further, since that time there has been an advance in the price of stone from $1 to $1.25@1.30. Of the total cost the front foot as a reasonable one, the work being much higher in other cities. The stone to be used is not granite, but limestone, coming from the Putnamville quarry. Of late years it has not been much used in this city, but nearly fifty years ago the steps of the present Bank of Commerce building were laid from this quarry, and the condition in which these steps are to-day attest the durability. It is stated that considerable of the curbing will necessitate no change, and where this is the case the cost will be reduced to $9.07 per lineal foot. Yesterday and to-day the Journal editorially made a bitter attack upon the contemplated improvement, characterizing it as a fraud and a swindle, a steal and a job and it warms the conveil to reject the a job, and it warns the council to reject the contract, owing to its excessive cost. It also calls attention to the fact that when the last improvement of the street was made there was an agreement between the city and the property-holders looking to the maintenance of repairs by the city, and there is a prospect that this may vitiate the new ordinance, and saddle the city with the entire expense. "In any event," says the Journal, "honesty and square dealing demand of the city coun-cil and aldermen that a new deal be had in this whole matter, from first to last."

The District Attorneyship. On account of having secured the demo-cause of the want of the necessary fee (2o cents), as this was furnished by patrons of the Newsboys' Home. Nearly all of the boys, however, had money of their own and seemed to take kindly to the scheme. Badges are to be granted those licensed so soon as the city clerk receives them. Boys who sell papers on Sunday only will be charged the full fee. The report that money is thus extorted in support of the Newsboys' home is not true, as the fees go to the city.

An Influential Reference. Federal Marshal Hawkins has been in Washington much of the time this spring, laboring with the senate judiciary committee, of which Senator Edmunds is chairman, regarding the confirmation of his nomination. Friday he was entaged in filling out an application for life insurance when he came across the following: "Give the name of some person or persons with whom you have been intimately associated for the past few months." Hawkins thought over the matter a minute and then wrote: "George F. Edmunds, of Vermont." Federal Marshal Hawkins has been in

A Step-Ladder Thief. The trial of Joe Smith, colored, indicted for the theft of step-ladders from various residences, will be tried this week. Smith seems to have done a very flourishing business in this respect, going from house to house borrowing a ladder under the plea that a neighbor wanted it, and then selling the same, and sometimes stealing the article outright. He was also equally liberal in securing other household stuff, and he seemed to have no trouble in adapting himself to circumstances.

Editor Hathaway's Railroad Passes Editor Hathaway's Railroad Passes.

When Barnum's show was here, Editor Hathaway, of the Independent, had his pocket picked of a half-dozen railroad passes, and Friday he got a "tip" that they were at Powell's ticket office, on South Illinois streat, and going around there, with a police officer, they were surrendered. Powell said that a man had found them under the carpet up stairs, and he claimed that he was holding them, awaiting a claimant, although Mr. Hathaway's name was on them.

Indianapolis Wholesale Market. A brisk and strong feeling is apparent in the staple markets, speaking generally, at this, the opening of another week. Provisions, for instance, are higher and active. Kingan has adfrom $1 to $1.25@1.30. Of the total cost the street car company will bear a burden of $2.63 per lineal foot. The engineer regards the bid of Fulmer & Seibert, at $12.40 per front foot as a reasonable of the sea a reasonabl also is stronger and selling freely at the firm values quoted to-day. Groceries hold all of their recently acquired strength. Both sugars and coffees are firm. Drugs steady and moving with some freedom. The country produce market, contrary to the general state of things market;
ble, is in a declining mood. Owing to the continuance of the weak New York markets, shippers are distinctioned to pay more for spring

On account of having secured the democratia nomination for congress in the eighth district, with a strong probability of being elected, it is probable that United States District Attorney Lamb will shortly reging that position. In the event that he does, the administration will doubless have no great difficulty in securing a successor, as there are plenty of patriots who will willingly sacrifice their personal interests to take the place.

Among the federal officials there is a decided feeling in favor of the appointment of Mr. G. L. McNut, at present Mr.

Lamb's assistant, who has had an important part in the management of the office, and has showed himself to be attentive to his duties, efficient and capable. Mr. Ros Clarke is also a candidate for the place, which slowed a mealth of the state bloom of the place, where he had been visiting friends, was assaulted by Joe Hogan, who knocked him down, and he was then cut in the face with a razor in the hands of a fellow known as 'Irish Jack,' the injury being several inches in length. The only cause known to the police is that Ford spoke to Mrs. Hogan as ahe passed him on the street. To-day 'Irish

SHIPPING CATTLE PReceipts of shipping cattle are very light. The market is slow at Saturday's prices. Our receipts Saturday were liberal; mostly of a common and medium grade. There were no extra choice cattle offered. The market moved very slow, only occasionally a load being sold, and then at prices not very satisfactory to the salesmen. Several loads were shipped on in first hands, hoping to do better in other markets. Our advices from eastern points is beavy run; will sell lower.

THE REAR GUARD OF THE REVOLUTION. This is a narrative, by Edmund Kirke, of the adventures of the pioneers that first crossed the Alleghanies and settled in what is now Tennessee, under the leadership of James Robertson and John Sevier. The latter is notably the hero of the narrative. The title of the book is derived from the fact that a body of volunteers crossed the mountains to uphold the patriotic cause, and by their arrival secured the defeat of the British army at King's Mountain. Edmund Kirke will be remembered as the author of "Among the Pines." Price $1.50. For sale by the Bowen-Marrill Co. CITY NEWS

The latter gave way, and in the fall Brown struck upon a nail which made an ugly rent in his thigh, the flesh be-ing pierced to the bone.

. Since the establishment of the work house there has been no use for the addition to the jail known as the "commissioners' folly," as the few prisoners in care of the sheriff are kept in the main prison. The addition might as well be torn away, for it was never any use for the custody of prisoners, and the escapes from it were as numerous as the whim of the prisoners so inclined.

tendance. The raid which Patrolman Brady made on the "contz" players, Saturday evening, at the hotel Bates, and the poker game which Sergeant Lowe burst earlier in the week, indicate that the police may, some time in the indefinite future, rise to the occasion, and tackle the Circle street game. Of course, it is a good deal to expect, but still there have been some great things accomplished when least expected, and in a way where the lien apon a city was equally as great. Saturday afternoon Mrs. Martha Harris, an old lady en route from Canada to Jacksonville, Ill., was ejected from an I., B. & W. train for non-payment of fare, and found her way to the police station, or rather the patrol wagon was sent for her, as she claimed that she was unable to walk. Afterward a pass was secured for her as far as Greeneastle, but before it reached the police station she slipped out, and yesterday she was heard from on the Mooresville pike, headed wast. She gave out that she intended to west. She gave out that she intended to walk to Jacksonville, and the probability is

The Evangelistic Union.

To the Editor of The Indianapolis News:

Its object: It aims to enlist and organize the efforts of christian women in behalf of the souls of men, women and children who are out of Christ and out of the church. It has employed a missionary, who will visit from house to house, and by sympathy, precept and advice, by the reading of God's word and prayer, try to inspire the mothers with correct views of duties and with the desire to reform their lives, elevate their homes, educate their children and bring them up in "the fear of the Lord."

Its field includes the whole city of Indianapolis, where there are thirty thousand of ignorant and degraded people, whose piliable condition urgently appeals to enlightened women, since women alone can render them the help tipe need, and wherever woman's heart or brain or hand is needed in christian help they need, and wherever woman's heart or brain or hand is needed in christian work, and can be joined with kindred workers by the aid of the Holy Spirit, there is woman's mission and the Savior's urgent call.

Its plan of operation: This society most earnestly desires that all orthodox churches will unite with it in this great work; fourteen churches are already represented and with the aid of the Holy Spirit, which dwelleth richly among us, we can truly prophery that the work will move on, and that we, in God's hand as a society, will be instrumental in doing much good.

Its funds: These are to be obtained directly from the different churches, through an efficient finance committee, no membership being required.

The Salvation Army at the Rink-The Union Meeting-Other Services.

That division of the Salvation Army that is under the command of Colonel Charles E.

Thompson began its work in this city at the Virginia-avenue rink last night, and, in spite of their eccentricities of dress and conduct and peculiar methods, it was made manifest that they were in earnest in their evangelical work. The "army" consists of Colonel Charles E. Thompson, Captain Thompson (his wife), Captain Nathan Stambaugh, Cadet Thompson (a young son), and last night they were reinforced by Captain J. W. Skillinger, a member of the army who has been here several weeks, but who does not belong to their division. There were 300 or 40 people at the rink, and Mrs. Thompson, who stood at the door, asked for 5 or 10 cents from each. The literature of the army was sold throughout the audience at cheap prices. The members of the army were all dressed Several colored citizens, headed by John T. Mahorney, met yesterday and passed resolutions in memoriam of the late Dr. Stratford.

park, and the civil engineer is disposed to recommend not only the removal of the alleged fencing arounds the park, but also the sidewalk, and extend the walk to the street. The sidewalk is a favorite promenade and should be left alone.

Saturday afternoon Patrolman Brady entered one of the sleeping rooms occupied by the colored waiters at the hotel Bates and placed under arrest eighteen players of "oontz," but while waiting for the wagon seventeen of the offenders escaped. The solitary prisoner registered as Charles Jackson. Only two days remain for the county board of equalization to conclude its work, and they are considering the feasibility of ordering a new appraisement, although they will probably not do so on account of the brevity of the time. The board can not sit for more than fifteen days, and can not let the appraisement go over to next year's board.

The Evansville police are detaining a man sailing under the names of Charles Foster, E. J. Harden and E. A. Stewart, whoo claims to have gotten into a row at 327 West Washington street, this city, which resulted in his breaking a chair over the head of a stranger. The local police know nothing of such an occurrence.

I had not received a copy of his publication since December, 1885, to which I received the following competent employes for no other reason than that they are republicans, and filling their places with ward heelers and party bunumers, some of whom can scarcedy read, has produced wide spread distrust, and is doing the city great harm. The postal service in this city is a disgrace to Jones, to his party and to the state.

Historian of the WHEN:
To a reconsiderably off in your biography of Zero. He did not sell feathers on commission, and his neighbors did not take their "down to Zero." Zero was a low-down sort of a fellow, and was counted for maight in the neighborhood where he lived. He patented the thermometer after it was invented by Fahrenheit.
His name appears upon all that are manufactured, and I presume he still gets a royalty. Mercury was a quondam associate of his, but they seldom harmonized upon a subject for any length of time.

sedom narmonized upon a subject for any length of time.

Zero was one of those cold-blooded, phlegmatic, torpid kind of fellows who wore ulsters, chest-prolectors, liver-pads and such. Mercury, a girdy, hight-headed citizen, without much sallast, you will remember, was a messenger of Jupiter—the district telegraph service being in full operation at the time—and his business was to conduct the souls of the dead, according to mythology, to the infernai regions. This was warm work, and upon his return from these excursions be would ask Zero, "is this his tenough for you?" and Zero would just give Mercary one look of contemptuous disdain, and things would get awfully chilly. You never could tell what Mercury was going to do on such occasions. He might keep temperate, or he might work himself up up passion to a blood heat, or even a fever heat, or he might take a drink, get reckies and fall away below Zero in the estimation of good citizens.

If you could, O WHEN, arrange to get Zero bere, reckies and fail away below Zero in the estima-tion of good citizens. It you could, O WHEN, arrange to zet Zero bere, as tacy did the two Sams, and give him a Secr-sucker and a Fan, it would be a glorious anap for Zero, and it would please the community and place it under renewed obligations to the
